Nixon Naming

'Sure'

WASHINGTON A source close to the Senate's Watergate investigation says "there is absolutely no doubt' that ousted White House counsel John Dean will swear that President Nixon knew the scandal was being covered

Based on what Dean has told Senate investigators, the source said, "he is going to name the president . . . I can tell you that much."

Dean won't get a chance to air his testimony until next week, however. The Senate committee voted Monday to postpone its televised hearviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

The postponement came as columnist Jack Anderson re-ported that Dean admitted using $4,000 in Nixon cam-paign funds to finance his honeymoon last year. Ander-son indicated his information came from "one of the president's men." He said Dean left an I.O.U.

At the same time, special Watergate prosecutor Archi-bald Cox said, in response to a reporter's question, that he is studying whether a president may legally be sub-poenaed or indicted. But he said he routinely studies all legal questions in matters of interest to him, and "it would be wrong to draw any infer-

Skylab Set For Next Tenants

HOUSTON (UPI) - Skylab's astronauts made repairs on their space station today with "a hammer and a feather" in a 96-minute space walk and retrieved six rolls of pictures of man's nearest and life-giving star - the sun.

Charles "Pete" Conrad and Paul Weitz climbed around the huge solar observatory mounted piggy-back on the station, using their final spacewalk to do last-minute fix-it jobs and ready the 100-ton craft for its next crew July 27.

Conrad, Weitz and Joseph Kerwin, scheduled for a 6:48 a.m. PDT Friday splashdown to end man's longest space-flight, needed only half the alloted time for the crew's second walk in space to repair the once-crippled re-search ship. Kerwin remained inside as Conrad banged on a battery charger to close a switch and brushed away a tiny white thread on one of the seven solar telescopes. Weitz tended Conrad's lifeling and passed Conrad's lifeline and passed

Thomas T. Towns, 4603 Vantreight, sought relief from a $1,383 property tax bill, based on the assessment of land-and building as of Dec. 31, 1972.

Council has no authority to alter the school, hospital and municipal finance authority portion of the total bill, however. These taxes amount to $573 for schools and $12 for hospitals and MFA.

Towns also remains responsible for the taxes on land, amounting to $648, making a total of $1,234 compared with the original $2,031 tax on land and improvements.

Message From Sooke to Oak Bay

A majority of the 54 per cent of eligible voters who took the trouble to mark ballots turned down the proposed $650,000 ice arena construction by-law in Sooke on Saturday-and no doubt stirred conflicting emotions in Oak Bay. The by-law required a 60 per cent majority to pass, but 715 voted against it and only 580 for it.

A number of reasons may be advanced for the submission's failure. Some residents thought the community needed other amenities more than an ice rink. Some, as our correspondence columns indicated, felt that provision of recreational facilities for the younger generation was the responsibility of parents of those who would benefit, not the taxpayers at large.

But whatever the reason, the vote was decisive and the issue had progressed through the proper channels — the people who would have had to pick up a substantial portion of the bill were consulted and rendered their verdict.

This is in direct contrast to the action taken by the Oak Bay Couneil last March. On that occasion the assembled aldermen of the eastern municipality voted five to one to proceed with a new recreation centre without reference to the voters.

Oak Bay voters had resulted in rejection of the concept, the council action could be viewed only as a decision to by-pass them under pressure from an active and effective recreation lobby.

At that time Alderman John Goult was the only member voting in opposition. His case, that the commitment of more than threequarters of a million dollars of taxpayers' money should be undertaken only with taxpayers' approval, is strengthened on an ethical basis by Saturday's vote in Sooke. The same vote showed the expediency of avoiding an approach to the public for such facilities because the public might not want to pay, or might prefer to have their money invested in some other amenity or service.

As it stands today, Oak Bay Council has made application to the federal government for a Winter Capital Projects Fund loan, which may be forgiven, has hired a Vancouver architect with a Victoria helper to design the buildings, and has let residents know that their contribution is estimated at $766,667.

There are, of course, excellent arguments for the creation of recreational facilities. Their desirabil-

They Were Concerned

In uptown Manhattan the other evening, three hoodlums, in a purse-snatching attack on a 19year-old girl, knocked her to the ground and fled when she screamed. Onlookers converged on the attackers, surrounded a taxi into which they jumped for a getaway and held the car immobile until police arrived.

The citizens wanted no repetition of the Kitty Genovese case, in which a girl was stabbed to death in Queens while citizens looked on and declined to become involved.

The Manhattan incident revives faith in the decency of human beings, offsets charges of indifference to the victims of big town thuggery and mugging - to a point frequently made by those who seek to uphold the law.

That point is that the individual cannot remain indifferent to violence practiced on another person. There is, of course, a certain hazard involved in the interference by law-abiding citizens in the activities of criminals. They can be hurt. But there is danger also in non-interference, in the creation of the opinion among wrong-doers that they can get away with anything because members of the public are afraid to intervene.

The Manhattan group has shown how such affairs should be handled — and helped to sponge out the blemish to the Big Town and draws international attention created by the Genovese incident.

Since earlier submissions to ity is not in question. But there are residents of Oak Bay, as of other municipalities, accustomed to buying what they can afford and choosing between various purchases on the basis of their purse. With continually escalating sums on their tax notices, their position is understandable.

In Sooke a majority of voters felt they could do without an ice arena. In Oak Bay, the qualified residents had no opportunity to express their opinion. They expect to get a recreation complex whether it's high on their shopping list or not.

Competency

A resolution from the Victoria Bar Association, endorsed by the Law Society of British Columbia, to select notaries public from the ranks of barristers and solicitors only, earned a forthright and interesting rebuttal at the society's annual meeting.

One member put it bluntly: "When the competency committee has cleared our own house of those who are incompetent, then I will vote for this resolution and not before." Another pointed out that notaries public can serve a useful purpose in those communities which fail to attract lawyers, usually because they are too small to make professional practice worthwhile.

When the resolution passes to the Benchers to decide if they think it should be forwarded to the attorney-general, they no doubt will consider the dissenting opinions cited above. They may also give thought to the fact that while incompetency should not be condoned, at least one of our provincial judges, highly respected by the profession and the public, assumed his duties without benefit of being a barrister or solicitor.

Competency, obviously, is not exclusively the characteristic of the legal profession, as opponents of the resolution have pointed out. Perhaps the solution to the bar's problem lies in an exercise of greater care in making the ap-

A Money Tree on the Farm

Calgary-Fashions in ideas, like fashions in women's clothes, go around in circles. The federal and provincial governments are now joint-venturing in the promotion of an idea that bloomed luxuriously on the prairies away back in World War II. It is the brain-storm of saders and it will have oldsters who spent their summers during the great depression working for $5 a month and board rubbing their eyes in wonder at the miracles time and inflation have

First the deal. Then the gimmickry. In the 1930's the government encouraged farmers to hire the unemployed by offering the farmers a $5 per month subsidy if they would hire a farm worker at $5 a month and board. Today Ottawa will subsidize the farmers to the tune of $200 a month if they will hire unemployed students at $400 a month and board. The government will also reimburse the farmer for the six per cent vacation pay and unemployment insurance premiums he has to pay.

The net effect of the 1973 plan is that the farmer gets a full-time summer worker for $200 a month. The only qualifying stipulation seems to be that the farmers cannot hire their own sons. That, too, is right out of the regulations of 30 odd years ago. The stipulation, then, was to prevent a farmer from adding $10 a month to the family income by hiring his own son. But hundreds of prairie farmers got around that proviso by swapping sons, for the sake of the record, with their neighbors.

When the World War II recruiters soaked up the unemployed and added thousands of farm boys to their rosters, a great shortage of farm labor developed. The $5 a month deal was dropped. As the farmers, for the first time in history, were caught up in the income tax net, they discoverd they could not claim as deductions for expenses any wages they paid their sons.

Farmers who hired strangers, like neighbors' sons, could deduct any wages paid. So it was back to the $5 a month formula for the farmers. They hired each other's sons on a reciprocal basis. When Joe Smith hired Mike Korchuk's son, it was only a paper deal for the sons swapped jobs. They went on working on their home farms for their fathers while collecting wages from their neighboring for-the-record employers.

And that, as an enthusiastic farmer was hinting broadly on a recent CBC broadcast, is the way the $400 a month deal is working out. Farm fathers, he explained, were most reluctant to allow their student sons to work for wages on neighboring farms when they were needed at home. Now they will be encouraged to do so. Always providing the neighbor will let his son work for wages. There is one factor which will tend to water down the widespread use of the system. It so happens that midsummer is the period when work is lightest on prairie grain farms. The crop is in. Aside from occasional spraying and a pass or two over the summer fallow, this is the season for baseball tournaments, local fairs and taking off for flings at mountain vacations.

On large cattle spreads, feed lots or where farmers are feeding pigs or steers, there is work to be done. But the mixed farm of 40 years ago, with its cows to milk, eggs to gather, chickens to feed, churns to operate, has disappeared from the prairies. The $400 a month jobs the students will be given will fall largely into make-work, puttering-around categories. They will be fixing fences, where such fences still exist, cleaning out shelter belts and weeding gardens where farmers still live on their farms. There will be repairing of buildings, fixing trucks and tractors and repairing grain storage bins.

Not So Crooked

But most of this sort of employment is hardly the kind of work a farmer would pay $100 a week to have done. It is, however, the kind of thing he would appreciate having done for nothing. And he can get it done for nothing by use of the Smith-Korchuk double switch if he can talk his son into accepting $50 a week. He doesn't even have to be all that crooked to bring it off. He can pay $100 a week and charge his son $50 a week for the board and room provided prior to the

There can also be a bonanza for the son from unemployment insurance. The two months summer work will qualify him to apply for unemployment insurance benefits. If he can con that department into believing he is able and willing but cannot find farm work at $100 a week, he may be successful in getting $60 a week unemployment insurance for a maximum of 26 weeks.

As any veteran of the Bennett $6 a month relief camps of the 1930s will testify, more in sorrow than anger, this is a world they never knew and never even

Fair's Fair-But Both Ways

WASHINGTON - For the last couple of years, the Nixon administration, with Vice-President Agnew leading the charge, has been protesting against what it calls "instant analysis" of presidential speeches by television comme tators, and now the Columbia Broadcasting System has announced that it will abandon this practice.

The timing and reasoning of the C.B.S. decision are a little puzzling, If anything, C.B.S. has been even more insistent than N.B.C. or A.B.C. in demanding that all the rights and obligations of the press under the First Amendment should apply equally to broadcasting.

Yet, just when the broadcasting industry was beginning to get strong public support for this principle of equal protection under the First Amendment, and precisely when the public was learning from the Watergate scandals that maybe presidential statements needed the most searching analysis, "instant" and otherwise, C.B.S. announces that it will adopt a policy of "delayed reac-

Presidential Sensitivity

Presumably, this decision was made by William Paley of C.B.S. in order to be fair to the president and he has a point To have a carefully prepared presidential address on the complicated ambiguous and even dangerous problems of the day subjected to the immediate impressions of the C.B.S. stars obviously troubles the man in the White House. They would rather have Rather (Cronkite, Sevareid, or Mudd) wait.

This all seems fair enough, until you think about just how fair it is. The problem of avoiding sudden or ill-considered reactions to presidential speeches is not created by the broadcasters, but by the president. Whenever the president decides to make a major speech, it is constructed with the greatest care, after days and even weeks of preparation and calculation and is ready, subject to lastminute accidents, long before it is deliv-gage in "instant analysis" only because the White House holds back the text until the last minute, though the text is prepared, completed, and mimeographed many hours before. The White House wants it that way. It wants to create a carefully calculated public reaction from the American people, without any "yes buts" from the commentators. In short it blames the networks for reacting too the careful and thoughtful analysis it says it wants.

Accordingly, it is odd that Bill Paley, of all people, should impose a hard rule of no instant analysis on his correspondents, especially since, with the best will in the world, it is unenforceable. The president makes statements every day; and the C.B.S. White House correspondent reports on them and comments on them. Is Paley going to tell his White. House correspondent merely to report what the president says every day and not analyse what the president said until later? If so, John Chancellor and David Brinkley at N.B.C., and Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner at A.B.C. are going to have a field day. This issue of "fairness" and "instant /analysis," of course, is only one illustration of the much larger problem of the role of television in American political life. "Equal time" under the so-called "fairness doctrine" that now exists under law is neither "equal" nor "fair."

If the White House announces in advance that the president will make a "major announcement" on Monday night or Democrats are given equal time on Wednesday, the audience will not be the same or "equal" and the debate will certainly not be therefore "fair."

Actually, the problem of "instant analysis" of presidential speeches is much simpler than the problem of television's role in the courts and in the Watergate hearings.

In general, judges have banned the television cameras from the courtrooms on the ground that they put unnecessary and unfair pressure on sensitive witnesses and create an atmosphere of tension and theatre.

* Except on special occasions, such as the president's state of the union address, before the Congress, television has been kept out of the Senate and the House, but the Senate has permitted many of its hearings to be televised, while the House has not.

Right to Know Ridlde

What to do about all this - about the right of witnesses to testify without undue television pressure, and the right of the public to know what is going on is an unresolved question, which the Watergate scandals have brought to the

Archibald Cox, the Watergate prosecutor, wants the Senate television hearings limited lest they interfere with the prosecution and conviction of people who may have broken the law: Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina wants the televised hearings to go on in order to edu-cate the public and provide a basis for new corrective laws. This is a devilish dilemma that needs careful study for the days ahead, when television will play an increasingly pow-erful role in political campaigns and in the education of the voters. But meanwhile, we need all the analysis we can get of presidential power and television power, for if the president can use all the power of his office and command instant access to the TV networks. without instant analysis of what he says, the American political system will be even more unbalanced than it was at the beginning of the Watergate scandals.

The true claim to superior ty is not the specialist's, but the generalist's; not the handing over of one piece of knowledge or skill which is his job and not mine, but the total response of one human being "curing" another's lack of wholeness. There is a time for less than total response. Fortunately, there are quite a lot of them. The time will come when people realize that society is too complicated to be left to social workers.

For instance, easy acbility, as in the aftermath of wars or persecutions, suicide rates tend to reach a peak in countries which are affected, but one stable factor is that, have predominated in committing suicide over females. On the other hand, Dr. May says, "in recent years there has been a tendency to an increase in suicide in the younger age groups, although most suicides continue to occur in the elderly."

There is good reason to be-lieve, Dr. May says, that the figures collected and analyzed by WHO on the basis of na-tional returns provided by countries are themselves sus-pect — on the low side.

He adds: "The explanation for inaccuracies is not hard to find. The legal and medical procedures under which cases of suicide are determined and registered vary from country to country. Reluctance to certify the death as due to suicide is understandable, for instance, when personal social make it preferable to substi-tute some alternative cause."

While the available figures may not reflect the true seriousness of the situation, they indicate considerable differences in suicide rates from country to country. The latest WHO statistics showed that Hungary has the highest rate at 33.1 per 100,000 population. There the rate for males is as high as 48.3 per 100,000 but the average is lowered be-cause the rate for females is only 18.9, although even this is higher than any other coun-

Violent means of self-destruction, for example by firearms, hanging or jumping from buildings, continue to predominate amongst men, but there are broad differences in the means employed between different countries and between different social and cultural systems.

The picture is quite different where attempted suicide is concerned, both in motivation as well as age and sex dis-tribution. Dr. May says: "The great majority of cases of attempted suicide will be found amongst the lower age groups, especially females. ### Forced lo Become Prostitute: Stripper

CHICAGO (UPI)-A former Chicago strip tease dancer sobbed uncontrollably Monday while testifying about how she was forced into a career of prostitution in a luxurious walled villa in Saigon.

Denee Kocoa, 28, who now works at a hot dog stand, was the first witness in the trial of three men on charges of recruiting entertainers, dancers and strippers as part of a vice scheme.

The defendants, Raymond Auler, Craig Poulter and Charles Zemster, are also charged with conspiracy.

A fourth man, Robert Monagham, has already pleaded guilty and a fifth, James Cotton, is a fugitive last reported seen in East Berlin. Miss Kecoa told a jury that she had been a dancer in Chi-cago, specializing in go-go, belly, and strip tease dances, before Auler and Zemster recruited her and two other women to work in Vietnam.

When they arrived in Sai-gon, iss Kocoa said, they were taken to the villa, which con-tained a nightclub.

In the course of a conversa-tion with Cotton, who ran the club, Miss Kocoa said, Cotton I brought you here for an ori-ental holiday."

She said she protested to Auler, who allegedly told the girls "we weren't his prob-lems anymore."

Cotton threatened to "mess up my face" and harm her family if she did not agree, told how Canada manages the radio-active wastes from its nuclear plants.

Dr. Philip Jones, chairman of the institute of environmental sciences and engineering at University of Toronto, brought up some examples, only one of them Canadian.

First, there was mineral processing and mining. The Ontario Water Resources Com-mission in 1971 found that some lakes in the uranium-mining area of Elliot Lake had con-

The background level of radiation is the same amount of radiation all mankind has been subject to since Adam and Eve.

There were failures of nuclear plants re plants. Finally, there was the possibility of "nuclear hijacking — now within the grasp of any bright lunatic."

"These are all rather extreme possibili-ties, but possibilities they are," said Dr.

FIRE CHIEF QUITS

DUNCAN - Fire Chief Vern Jones and assistant fire chief Gary Weismiller have submitted their resignations from the Duncan Volunteer Fire department, effective June 30.

Jones, a city employee, declined to comment on his reasons but Weismiller stated it was because council has refused to buy new equipment. He said a new fire truck is needed to replace a 1951 model.

He also said while there is an adequate domestic water supply there is not enough reserve for fire-fighting numbers.

He said an aerial ladder is necessary because taller build-ings are being erected in the city.

Bay.

Ald. John Goult came to the defence of wild mustard at Monday's meeting of council's parks and recreation commit-tee after works superintendent Stan Bell reported that a new weed discovered at Shoal Bay had been identified as wild mustard.

"Why did you spray?" asked Goult, "It's a pretty yellow and white flower. Why spray it?"

"It's considered a weed," Bell replied, "What do you do with weeds? Kill them."

"It's ot typical of our society," retorted Goult, "We see something new and we run out with a spray and kill it. I'm serious about this. Great Scott! You've imported a vicious weed from Sasnich, you've out to rish out and kill it. weed from Saanich—you've got to rush out and kill it.

MONTREAL - Is the James Bay project really nec-

The province has argued that to put its economy on a sound basis and meeting the increasing demands for power, the project costing an estimated $5.8 billion is the best available solution.

Lawyers for the natives dis-

Max Bernard said the prov-ince has overestimated the demand for power by a sub-stantial amount; and that even if the calculations on dewill be available without construction of other facilities.

Even if additional facilities are needed, he argued that alternatives can be found at a cost no greater, and probably more cheaply, than those un-derway in northern Quebec. In its initial stages the project calls for construction of four dams on the Grand River, 600 miles north of here, and changes in the water flow of four rivers.

In the long run, the project is to open, an area half the size of Manitoba to hydro, mineral, forestry and tourist industry development.

Evidence given by the province on the cost of work done on the project to date shows 'incredible mismanagement," Bernard said. Quebec has said that $18.5 million in the cost of the project to date is estimated as the amount needed to meet claims by contractors, essen-tially for changed conditions. "In effect," Bernard said,

"these claims are running to about 24.55 per cent of the amount of work done. If the work continues to be done in this manner, then the total . . . concerning construction costs of La Grande becomes $7.1 billion," not $5.8 billion.

300 SHELLS FOUND IN RANGE SWEEP

VERNON (CP) — Nearly 300 infact mortar shells, bombs and grenades — most of them potentially dangerous — have been found by soldiers so far in a sweep of two Second World War practice ranges near here.

The total, found in 500 acres, includes 21 clusters of mixed high explosive and smoke-producing mortar bombs averaging 10 bombs to a cluster. Apparently these had been gathered and temporarily stockpiled when the ranges were in use during and after the war.

The smaller Cosens Bay range, bordering nearby Kalamalka Lake, has been completely swept, a Canadian Forces spokesman reported Monday. About 300 acres of the Birney range remain to be searched.

More than 21,000 man-hours have been devoted to the search, which began May 5 and is scheduled for completion by mid-July. Six anti-tank shells have been found and turned

Fast Ball 'Out Pitch' Only When He Needs It

"The arm is just fine," said the King. "After 28 years, you don't work down from the fast ball in this business, you work up to it." If the fast ball was still his "out pitch," The King could throw it if he really had to, which isn't that often. He has so much else going for him.

The King was Eddie Feigner, the amazing athlete who masterminds and stars in "The King and His Court," soft-ball's four-man show which has shown around the world many times over. Last night it was Victoria's turn again after a 15 or 16-year absence, Feigner wasn't quite certain, and the best softball crowd of the season, 2,700, turned

"Win, lose or tie," Feigner said before the game, "we'll will, loss of the put on our show." That was against Bate Construction of the Northwest League, and if Bate won 4-2, Feigner and one of his chief lieutenants, Al Jackson, gave Bates their due.

"They had nothing to gain by playing us and losing," Feigner said. "They had much to lose, but still they played. And they showed us some pitching."

If that was the plus for Bates, Jackson agreed, "the pitching was good — you could see that! I let our side down in the first inning." (Jackson struck out twice as the King and His Court scored their only two runs off Barry Jackson of Bates. After that it was Dave Ruthowsky and Stan Kern who handles the visitors in style.

Of Kern, Jackson said: "Oh, we knew him before. He's good and his raise ball is difficult to hit. I only got around on it once. I think I could get his downer, though."

To the crowd, Feigner suggested that Bates were a pretty good ball club and he saw something there that could fit into a professional picture in the next few years.

* * *

Feigner sees softball on the upswing particularly in the States and the implementation of the new professional league in the east as only the beginning of bigger things ahead.

His point is that softball has never been at a greater peak of popularity than it is now, and with all the domed stadiums being constructed across the country, what better way to fill them on dark nights than by professional softball?

And could be still pitch in a pro league? Well, anyone who saw him Monday would agree it would be nicer to have him on your side than against.

As to his years on the road, playing on the average "nine or 10 games a week," Feigner says "no, I don't throw the fast ball nearly as often as I used to. I use it only when I have the batter set up for it."

Matter of fact, the one concession to time he does make is that the team now carries a spare. Feigner doesn't always Feigner's repertoire of pitches is fancy indeed and the post-game clinic on the history and different pitches in the game was just as interesting to many as the game in which he pitched blindfolded in one inning and from near second base in another. He struck out 13. Bob Holness got three of the six hits he allowed.

It was a remarkable exhibition, but then Feigner is a remarkable man; and if you have wondered about the respe tive speeds of a baseball and a softball, the answer is in the Rhyne Duren of the New York Yankees, it is said, could throw a baseball faster than anybody — 98.4 m.p.h. Bob Feller's best was timed in 96.8. But then they put the clock on Feigner, it came out as 104 m.p.h. And that isn't the very fastest either. There is another softball pitcher in the States who has clocked at 108.9 m.p.h.

Victorians were privileged indeed last night to watch

Feigner and other members of the cast which obviously has changed greatly through the years — remember this is four en, only two-infielders, against nine — and it would reprise no-one if Feigner is back again next year, and the

New Pro Golf Circuit Favors Plenty of Noise

An Atlanta-based outfit called "Tournament Golf Interna-tional" wants to come to British Columbia. If that happens, -Leroy, you'd better hustle out and buy yourself a pair of ear

People like a hearty chuckte now and then, and IGI has come around to give us all another laugh.

As a matter of fact, TGI also will allow you to scream and yell at golfers, if that's your desire. They will be delighted to make golf's great no no a yes-yes.

TGI also hopes to break the hold on the game now shared by the Professional Golfers' Association. If Paul Gastwirth has his say, TGI soon will be staging tournaments all over

And what of the PGA's present $9 million, 44-tournament tour and its rule which says those who play in PGA events may not play elsewhere without permission?

"A violation of the anti-trust act and the PGA would never dare take the matter into court," says Gastwirth, a 32-year-old Chicago promoter who now works out of Atlanta. He claims he already has organized 25-30 tournaments in the

Back in May, he even made inquiries about the possibili-ty of staging a TGI tournament in the Vancouver area next

In addition to his attack on the PGA, Gastwirth also plans to assault the USGA and the Royal and Ancient Golf Club, Why? Well, to put it mildly, Gastwirth thinks some of the game's rules are for the birds.

"Why," asks he, "should a golfer be restricted to the use of 14 clubs when he can play better with 16 or 20?"

And here's the part I like. He doesn't think much of stodgy old golf executives who play the role of marshals at tournaments. Gastwirth's "marshals" would be a bevy of bunnies recruited from the nearest Playboy Club. TGI isn't going to be tied down by time-honored re-

"Most restraints take away from the excitement that should be inherent in sports events," is another Gastwirth observation. "Yelling and screaming are part of watching a game. Diversity, individualism and creativity are a way of life. Let's have it."

Either Way, He'll Help

NEW YORK (AP) — The injury troubled New York Mets have come up with a solution for their health problems. They have drafted an ambidextrous outfielder.

He's Lee Mazzilli, and he was the 14th player chosen in baseball's summer freeagent draft.

If he nurs one hand, a reg-ular Met hazard these days, he can use the other. "That's _right," acknowl-edged Joe Maloney, athletic director at Abraham Lincoln high school where young Mazzilli starred as a centre field-er. "He's got two gloves, one left-handed and the other righty. He decides each day which one he'll use."

Primarily, Mazzilli is an outfielder. But McDonald says other youngster also can play third base, right-handed, and first base, left-handed. He is also a switch hitter.

Regarding his ambidextrous talents, Mazzilli said: "I guess I was just born with it.

No. 1 choice in the draft went to Texas Rangers, and they took Houston schoolboy pitcher David Clyde, who, unlike Mazzilli, throws with only-one hand—his left.

Clyde, with nine career no-hitters to his credit, has averaged two strikeouts an in-ning for Westchester high school. He has won 17 games without a loss this season and

POWELL RIVER (CP) — The Environmental Protection Service is investigating the apparent illegal use of a sinkant to disguise a diesel oil spill last week in Westview Harbor, about 100 miles north of Vancouver.

Dr. Lorne March, assistant co-ordinator for environmental emergencies, said the spill occurred late last week but wasn't reported until Sunday when the oil began "burping" to the surface.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Funeral service was held Monday for the Hon. Henry Herbert Stevens, one of the nation's foremost politicians, who died last week at the age of 94.

More than 300 people filled Memorial United Church to pay tribute to Stevens, former Conservative cabinet minister who toppled two governments during a 30-year career in the Stevens was first elected as an MP in 1911 and served as trade minister and customs minister and later again as trade minister. He left the Conservative party in 1935 to form the Reconstruction Party but was the only one of that group's 200 candidates elected in the 1935 general election. He was defeated in 1940.

The Commons Monday paid tribute to Stevens.

Heath MacQuarrie (PC—Hillsborough) said Stevens was a distinguished and progressive political leader. His remarks were echoed by Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford, who represents the Vancouver riding Stevens once served.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield, outside the Commons, described Stevens as a man of "great energy, vigor and courage" as an MP and cabinet minister.

SHOPPERS 'HOT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor Monday threw its full support behind the Retail Clerks' Union in its lengthy contract dispute with Shoppers.

The federation said it was declaring Shoppers outlets in the province to be "hot" in an attempt to end a 3½-month strike by the union's local 1518, which is seeking a first collective agreement.

There are 69 Shoppers outlets in B.C., operated by individual pharmacists under a franchise agreement with Koffler Stores Ltd., Toronto.

The federation said the company was denying the legal right of union representation to its employees by refusing to negotiate a contract. It said the "hot" delcaration will remain in effect until the company negotiates an agreement.

The course was rejected on the grounds it was too advanced for junior secondary - Approved in principle a

Ney suggested a kind of handicap system, as in golf. A per cent might have a 30 per cent handicap added to his mark. A student who normally gets 80 per cent would only

There are signs that strains of gonorrhea are emerging that are resistent to penicillin, the stand-by antibiotic.

Medical officials in the north point out that the gap between the N.W.T.'s gonorrhea rate and that of the rest of the country is probably exaggerated.

The reporting system in the small population groupings of the Arctic is highly accurate, they said.

Some medical authorities say the national rates represent only about 15 per cent of the actual incidence of the disease.

In the N.W.T., the gonorrhea rate was reported at 4,788 per 100.000.

The greatest victims of venereal disease in the north were Eskimos with 45 per cent of the reported cases last year. Indians followed with 31 unlike the rest of Canada, the incidence of syphilis, considered the most dangerors of the venereal diseases, was almost non-existent.

Saanich Softens on Community School

Another indication of Saan-ich's interest in the new Saan-ich Community Secondary School came to light at a Greater Victoria School Board meeting Monday.

The municipality has asked the board to tell the archi-tects of the school to prepare working drawings and obtain contract prices for an auditorium and swimming pool to be built as part of the school and financed by Saanich.

The board agreed in principle to do so.

Board chairman Peter Bunn stressed that this does not commit Saanich to building the 500-seat auditorium or swimming pool.

The double-edged sword.

When you look at the forest industry, what do you see? The unhampered destruction of our virgin forests? Man's greed running rampant through Nature's priceless legacy? And do you foresee the eventual extinction of B.C.'s forests and wildlife because of the people who cut down trees for a living?

If so, we invite you to look again.

Suicide? Not on your life. The fact is, without forests, the forest industry of B.C. would cease to exist. No trees, no industry-it's that simple. And that's why the forest industry's prime concern is the proper other attitude would be suicidal. Of course we cut down trees for a living. But we also make sure those trees are replaced. (The axe-once the only symbol of the forest industry - must now share equal importance with the mattock - the tool used in planting new trees-to realistically portray the forest industry of to- or potatoes, and he plants, not fire, insects, disease and wind that, today, there are more trees growing in British Columbia than there were 200 years ago. Today, reforestation is a fact—of life.

Reforestation: this baby's come a long way.

Of all our natural resources, the forest is the only one we can replace. And we do. In 1943, just 30 years ago, the forest industry, along with the B.C. Forest Service planted 11,000 acres of new trees. Last year, we planted 111,000 acres. This year, we'll restock 200,000 acres, and in 1980, we'll plant 150 million seedlings in 400,000 acres.

If this sounds like some gigantic farming operation, it's no coincidence. After all, a logger is a farmer. Sure, the logger's crop is trees, rather than wheat

Planning for the future is what needs of everyone concerned forest management is all about.
It means intelligent, controlled use of our forest resources-a result of close co-operation between the forest service and the forest industry—and it can lead to a properly balanced forest environment. But the factors involved in forest management are complex: protection from

Yet, the more we learn about this unique environment, the more we are convinced that it is possible to provide for the a perpetual forest to be enjoyed by you and your children -a constantly regenerating forest that supports and maintains a thriving forest industry.

Yes, we've made the forest our business. But we've also made it our business to make sure the forest will always be there.

For gardeners who care about freshness of the vege-tables they must have for health, the opportunity of making an almost complete sowing of all the common types in mid-July is not to be missed.

July is not to be missed.

Varieties to sow then are chosen for the short period of growing time needed until the vegetables are usable. The other factor to consider is that while the soil temperature will be warm at germination time, the sun will gradually be losing is intensity, and general growing conditions of air temperatures will more nearly resemble those from late April to early June — in reverse.

The geatest advantages of vegetable sowing in July are the properly summarized as these: warm soil will hasten germination and early seedling growth; air temperatures germination and early seedling growth; air temperatures will gradually decrease, thus strengthening the growth to the point where much of it will not be harmed by the first light frosts of fall; and, in normal fall seasons, the gentle rains take over the watering at a time when other garden-rains take over the watering at a time when other gardening activities claim attention.

The crops will be growing and becoming ready to use daily, with little further care.

Now to kinds and varieties of seeds to have ready. You will need to spend the necessary time to find what you want. Look around in stores which have seed agencies or farm and garden supplies. Take your list and don't be in a hurry.

Beans, only bush varieties of wax (yellow) or green pods. These need a minimum of 45 days to produce pods. You pick the last ones about mid-September or just before earliest frost.

Carrots, choose a short stumpy variety like Red Cored Chantenay. Beets, you want a tender small root and good top growth. Choose Early Wonder, which has both.

While thinking of beets, consider sowing Perpetual or Spinach Beet which gives you tender leaves to cut all through fall and winter in our normal temperatures.

Rhubarb Chard, somewhat similar, but with dark red leaves and stems, brings high nutrition, delicious flavor, and something different.

Sweet corn is worth another small sowing in mid-July though I prefer to make it no later than the Glorious Fourth. You must choose a corn with short stature and small cobs. Sunnyvee is the only 60-day variety I find listed, though we grew the miniatures with great success when the seed was available. seed was available.

Two kinds of lettuce should be sown — Buttercrunch for first use; Great Lakes 659, slow growing but a good late fall variety.

Green onions, radishes, cress and parsley are not hard to select. Use what you have left over from spring.

Don't forget the Snowball type of turnip; and the winter turnip, Laurentian Swede, which improves with fall frosts.

If you can find even a half dozen Keswick potato tubers, put them in for goodness' sake — they have superb flavor, texture and keeping qualities.

Today's preparation is tomorrow's good luck.

The Bridge Expert

The faculty of finding good things which were unsought or undreamed of is known as "serendipity." The experience of Brenda Finkel in the National Mixed Pairs Cham-pionships of 1972 is a practical example of serendipity in ac-tion; or, possibly, "seren-dipity lost."

As of November 1972, Bren-da had been playing tour-nament bridge for one year. She was paired with Mark Blumenthal, of Philadelphia. Mark was the second leading master-point winner in the na-tion in 1971 (Barry Crane, of Hollywood, California, was the leader). She was sitting West. Neither side vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding: West North East South 3.♥ Pass Pass 3 NT Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: King of V.

Brenda was on lead against South's three-notrump con-tract. In all the bridge books that she had ever read, it was stated that if one intends to lead a heart in the given sequence of bidding, one should lead the king—not the jack or a low card. The reasoning is that declarer has the ace, and it might well be that dummy has the singleton queen. In this case, the lead of the king will smother the queen, and declarer will be held to one trick in this suit (the lead of the jack or a low heart will give him two tricks).

So Brenda set out to apply in practice what she had learned in theory. She opened the king of hearts. Great was her joy when she beheld the singleton queen in dummy.

But then her joy was dis-pelled when East captured the trick with his ace and tre-turned a heart. When play had ended, declarer had gone down five tricks, losing seven hearts and the ace and king of

When we asked Brenda why when we asked Brenda why her joy had turned to gloom after her partner had won the opening heart lead with his ace, she answered: "I just as well could have opened a low heart, and saved the lead of the king for some other day." the king for some other day when it would have paid a dividend:"

who is not materialistically-inclinded. One would imagine that defeating a game contract five tricks would bring elation to the winner. But evidently Brenda is different; she preferred to be a winner via skill, and not via the luck catching her partner with the ace of hearts.

The contour stole, shown above, features a wide band of large cluster circles that look like full-blown flowers set in a background of airy crochet mesh, and sumptuously fringed.

The most unusual stole of the season is made up of joined picoted circlets. It has a three-button closing which is most attractive. The neck portion can be turned back to form a soft rolling collar, if desired. The romantic Juliet capelet and cap are made of the love-knot stitch pattern for a teen-ager's delight, but perfect as a beautiful creete toolar over-a basic black dress. The postponement came as columnist Jack Anderson reported that Dean admitted using $4,000 in Nixon campaign funds to finance his honeymoon last year. Ander-son indicated his information came from "one of the president's men." He said Dean left an I.O.U.

HOUSTON (UPI) - Skylab's astronauts made repairs on their space station today with "a hammer and a feather" in a 96-minute space walk and retrieved six rolls of pictures of man's nearest and life-giving star — the sun.

Charles "Pete" Conrad and Paul Weitz climbed around the huge solar observatory mounted piggy-back on the station, using their final spacewalk to do last-minute fix-it jobs and ready the 100-ton craft for its next crew July 27. Conrad, Weitz and Joseph Kerwin, scheduled for a 6:48 a.m. PDT Friday splashdown to end man's longest spaceflight, needed only half the alloted time for the crew's second walk in space to reain the oppositional re-
